

Contents

Editors' Introduction 1

Gentry Women and the Transformation of Daily Life in Jeffersonian and Antebellum Virginia

Phillip Hamilton 7

Jane C. Washington, Family, and Nation at Mount Vernon, 1830–1855

Jean B. Lee 30

“I Desire to Give My Black Family Their Freedom”

Manumissions, Inheritance, and Visions of Family in Antebellum Kentucky

Yvonne M. Pitts 50

Seeking a Moral Economy of War
Confederate Women and Southern Nationalism in Civil War North Carolina

Jacqueline Glass Campbell 74

Redirecting the Tide of White Imperialism

The Impact of Ida B. Wells's Transatlantic Antilynching
Campaign on British Conceptions of American Race Relations

Sarah L. Silkey 97

Unlikely Allies

Southern Women, Interracial Cooperation, and the Making of Segregation in Virginia, 1910–1920

Clayton McClure Brooks 120

Solving the Girl Problem

Race, Womanhood, and Leisure in Atlanta during World War I

Sarah Mercer Judson 152

To See Past the Differences to the Fundamentals

Racial Coalition within the League of Women Voters of St. Louis, 1920–1946

Priscilla A. Dowden-White 174

Louise Thompson Patterson and the Southern Roots of the Popular Front

Claire Nee Nelson 204

Women's and Girls' Activism in 1960s Southwest Georgia

Rethinking History and Historiography

Alisa Y. Harrison 229

About the Editors and Contributors 259

Index 261