

Contents

1	Introduction: Behind the Cloud	1
1.1	On the Changing Relationship Between Privacy and Secrecy in the Digital Age	1
1.2	Facets of Change: Privacy Without Secrecy on Three Levels	3
1.3	Digital Promises: Masters of the Universe with Secret Weaknesses	6
1.4	Distinction from Cases Not Dealt with	9
1.5	Does the Digital Age Still Need Theory?	11
	References	12
Part I	The Secret Private: Introduction and Derivation	15
2	“Privacy Is Dead”: How Could It Come to This?	17
2.1	What Is the Private Sphere?	18
2.2	The Secret Private: Three Types	21
2.2.1	God Sees Everything: Transcendent Analogous Omniscience	23
2.2.2	“Secret Privates”: Immanent Analogical Self-Knowledge	25
2.2.3	“Privacy Without Secrecy”: Immanent Digital Omniscience	28
2.2.4	Encroachments on the Secret Private in Digital Omniscience	34
2.3	Mass Society as a Social Precondition of Immanent-Digital Omniscience	35

2.3.1	Historical Materialism and De-individualization	36
2.3.2	The Drive towards Individualisation: Counterculture, Rebel Sell and Digitalisation	39
2.3.3	Summary: Digital, Individualised Mass Society and the Abolition of the Secret Private Sphere	42
	References	46

Part II Symptoms of the Structural Change of the Private 51

3	Showcasing Digital Omniscience in Everyday Life	53
3.1	Driving a Taxi	53
3.1.1	“Hello Taxi!”	53
3.1.2	TaxiApp	54
3.1.3	Uber	56
3.2	Overnight Stay	57
3.2.1	The Middle-Class Bedroom	58
3.2.2	Overnight Stay in the Boarding House	58
3.2.3	Airbnb	59
3.3	Celebrating and Eating	60
3.3.1	‘Everyone Brings Something’	61
3.3.2	Running Dinner	61
3.3.3	Food and Party	62
3.4	Sharing	66
3.4.1	St Martin: Sharing out of Religious Conviction	66
3.4.2	Collaborative Consumption: Sharing for a Better World	68
3.4.3	Sharing Economy: Sharing as a Business Case	70
3.5	Tying up	72
3.5.1	The Village Fete	72
3.5.2	Speed Dating	73
3.5.3	Parship	74
3.6	Advertising and Recommendations	76
3.6.1	Billboard, Newspaper Advertisement and Personal Recommendation	77
3.6.2	Quota Boxes and Direct Marketing	79
3.6.3	Integrated Personalised Advertising: AdWorks and Spying Billboards	81
3.7	Surveillance	84
3.7.1	The Village Policeman	85

3.7.2	Video Surveillance/CCTV	86
3.7.3	Widespread Access to Private Communications: General Surveillance	88
3.8	Work and Employment	90
3.8.1	Natural Working Rhythm	91
3.8.2	The Time Clock	92
3.8.3	Smartphone Tracking by the Boss	93
3.9	Election and Political Advertising	95
3.9.1	The Secret Ballot and the Election Poster	96
3.9.2	Voting Machines and Civil Dialogue	97
3.9.3	Obama and Pandora	98
3.10	Networks	100
3.10.1	Pinboard	100
3.10.2	Analogue-Digital Information Networks	102
3.10.3	The Powerful Digital Network	103
3.11	Payment and Digital Currencies	106
3.11.1	Cash	106
3.11.2	Credit Card	107
3.11.3	Cryptocurrency	109
3.12	Books and e-Books	110
3.12.1	One Edition, One Word	111
3.12.2	Zeros and Ones Are Patient: Books and e-Books in Peaceful Co-Existence	112
3.12.3	E-Books: When the Reader Reads the Reader	113
3.13	Sexuality and the Internet: The Incognito Illusion	114
3.13.1	Adult Entertainment from the Station Bookshop	115
3.13.2	When Pictures Learned to Surf	116
3.13.3	The Incognito Illusion, Fitness Trackers and Bedside Bugs	116
	References	123

Part III Theory of a Structural Change of the Private 131

4	The Private Sphere Changes: A Consequence of Digitalization	133
4.1	Economic Structural Change of the Private Sector	134
4.1.1	Political and Personal Significance of the Economy and Its Digitalisation	135
4.1.2	Economic Use of Personal Information	138

4.1.3	The Secret Private as a Business Case: Seamless Products and Platform Capitalism	140
4.1.4	The Shaping of the Secret Private by Companies	143
4.2	Political Structural Change of the Private Sector	144
4.2.1	Intrusion of Politics into the Secret Private Sphere of Citizens	145
4.2.2	Mixing Politics and Economics Through the Use of the Secret Private Sphere	148
4.2.3	Opposition to the Political Domination of the Private Sphere	150
4.2.4	Democratic-Legislative Updating of the Concept of Privacy	153
4.3	Social Structural Change of the Private Sphere	155
4.3.1	More Exchange, Less Self-Determination: Informational Heteronomy	156
4.3.2	New Social Spaces: Digital Intentionality and Self-Policing	159
4.3.2.1	Digital Intentionality	160
4.3.2.2	Self-Policing Instead of the Right to Be Forgotten	162
	References	164
5	Summary: Thoughts in a Digital World: Free, but no Longer Secret	169
5.1	Typology of the Secret Private	170
5.2	Symptoms and Theory of Structural Change	171
5.3	Digital Formation of the Secret Private	173
	References	174
6	Conclusion: Our Secrets Behind the Cloud	175
6.1	The Updated Concept of the Secret	175
6.2	The Secret Private in the Realm of Machines	176
6.3	What to Do?	178
6.3.1	Making People Aware of What They Have Made	179
6.3.2	Conscious Use of the Digital Infrastructure	179
6.3.3	Privacy as a Business Model	180
6.4	In Conclusion	182
	References	182

7 Outlook: Digital Authenticity: Immersive Consumption Without Secrets	185
7.1 What Is Authenticity?	186
7.2 Disney and Audi: Authenticity Brings Sales	188
7.3 Authenticity Without Secrecy	189
References	189
 From Ethical Considerations to Proposed Legal Solutions: An Afterword by Bertil Cottier	 191