

Contents

	Citation Information	vii
	Notes on Contributors	x
	 Introduction: tourism geographies in the 'Asian Century' Harnng Luh Sin, Mary Mostafanezhad and Joseph M. Cheer	 1
1	Critical tourism studies: new directions for volatile times Chris Gibson	11
2	What western tourism concepts obscure: intersections of migration and tourism in Indonesia Kathleen M. Adams	30
3	Decentring scholarship through learning with/from each 'other' Hazel Tucker and Stuart Hayes	56
4	'Asianizing the field': questioning Critical Tourism Studies in Asia T. C. Chang	77
5	Becoming Airbnbeings: on datafication and the quantified Self in tourism Claudio Minca and Maartje Roelofsen	95
6	Going on holiday only to come home: making happy families in Singapore Yinn Shan Cheong and Harnng Luh Sin	117
7	Linkages between tourist resorts, local food production and the sustainable development goals Regina Scheyvens and Gabriel Laeis	139
8	Food safety and tourism in Singapore: between microbial Russian roulette and Michelin stars Nicole Tarulevicz and Can Seng Ooi	162

9	Visitor diversification in pilgrimage destinations: comparing national and international visitors through means-end Ricardo Nicolas Prozano, Kumi Kato and Joseph M. Cheer	185
10	The materiality of air pollution: Urban political ecologies of tourism in Thailand Mary Mostafanezhad	207
11	Ontological mingling and mapping: Chinese tourism researchers' experiences at international conferences Jundan Jasmine Zhang and Carol Xiaoyue Zhang	225
12	Tourism studies is a geopolitical instrument: Conferences, Confucius Institutes, and 'the Chinese Dream' Ian Rowen	247
13	(Post-) pandemic tourism resiliency: Southeast Asian lives and livelihoods in limbo Kathleen M. Adams, Jaeyeon Choe, Mary Mostafanezhad and Giang Thi Phi	267
	Afterword: a critical reckoning with the 'Asian Century' in the shadow of the anthropocene Tim Oakes	289
	Index	296