

IMO NSE IMEH

Daughters of Seclusion

The Revelation of the Ibibio “Fattened Bride”
as the Icon of Beauty and Power

PETER LANG

New York • Washington, D.C./Baltimore • Bern
Frankfurt • Berlin • Brussels • Vienna • Oxford

Contents

List of Illustrations	ix
Foreword	xv
Preface: The Beauty/Character Binary: A Note about "Beautiful Maidens"	xix
Acknowledgments	xxi
1 Introduction to Mbopo Ritual	1
Part I: Anatomy of Beauty: Uyai Mbopo Revealed through Time, Transformation, and Transition
I The Puppet and the Girl	13
Time: A Culture of Initiation and Aesthetics of Seclusion	25
II Ekuk Mbopo	31
III Nwo-Nwo: The Seclusion of Little Girls	43
IV Ekuk Mbopo at the Ebiene Atai Village	61
V The School for Womanhood	71
Transformation: Mbopo as the Portrayer/Progenitor of Sanguinity and Extravagance	87
VI Body Inscriptions and the Wellness Performance	91
VII Adorning Comfort	111
Transition: From the Enclosure to the Marketplace: Indelible Marks of Femininity	121
VIII Impressions of Seclusion	125
IX The Clitoridectomy Rite	135
X The Staging of a Female Icon	149

Part II: The Scepter and the Flywhisk: Mbopo Theatre,
Corporeal Dialogues, and the Revelation of the Bride

Mechanisms in Uyai: Rewriting Her Body with Accouterments of Beauty and Power	169
XI Power Symbols	175
XII The Crest and the Crown	201
XIII The Uyai Anointing	217
Mbopo Nation: Returnee Mbopo and the Emergence of Objective Interpretation	231
XIV The Story of Akon Ekwere	237
XV Contemporary Iterations and Bride Residue	253
Conclusion: New Possibilities in Mbopo Discourse	277
Glossary	283
Notes	291
Bibliography	295
Index	307