

Migration and Landscape Transformation

Changes in East Central Europe in the 19th and 20th Century

Edited by
Martin Zückert and Heidi Hein-Kircher

.

Vandenhoeck & Ruprecht

CONTENTS

Preface	VII
Martin Zückert : Migration and Landscape. Intentional Change and the Long-Term Transformation of Cultural Areas in East Central Europe	1
Planned Migration and Landscape Transformation
Tadeusz Janicki : Wartheland as a “Mustergau”. The National Socialist Conception for Redesigning the Population Balance and the Landscape in Wartheland and Its Implementation from 1939 to 1945	15
Máté Tamáska : The Manorial Village, Garden Hungary and the Socialist Large Estate. The Landscape of the New Villages after the 1945 Hungarian Land Reform	37
Migrants and Changes in Landscape
Volodymyr Kulikov : Industrialisation and Transformation of the Landscape in the Donbas from the Late Nineteenth to the Early Twentieth Century	57
Aivar Jürgenson : Ideal and Real Landscapes. On the Landscape-Changing Strategies of the Estonian Settlers in Siberia	83
Ondřej Daniel : From Golden Plains through Black Mountains to the Silver Sea: The Nostalgic Spaces Described by Migrants from the Former Yugoslavia	107
Interpretation and Dissemination
Róbert Keményfi : Filling/Charging the Land(scape) Symbolically: The Notion of a National Land(scape) in Central Europe	127

Stephanie Zloch : Ideas of Landscape Influenced by Forced Migration: The Historical Region East Prussia in German, Polish, Russian and Lithuanian Textbooks	153
Karolína Pauknerová/Jiří Woitsch : Educational Trails as Agents of Landscape Memory in a Western Bohemian Border Region	175
List of Abbreviations	203
Contributors	205