

Networking the Globe

New technologies and the postcolonial

Edited by

Florian Stadtler and Ole Birk Laursen, with Brian Rock

Contents

Citation Information	vii
Notes on Contributors	ix
 Introduction – Networking the globe: culture, technologies, globalization Florian Stadtler and Ole Birk Laursen with Brian Rock	 1
1. Connecting the peripheries: networks, place and scale in the World Social Forum process Hilde C. Stephansen	4
2. Arguing about religion: BBC World Service Internet forums as sites of postcolonial encounter David Herbert, Tracey Black and Ramy Aly	17
3. Panopticons within panopticons: surveillance inversions in Willie Doherty's video installations Paula Blair	37
4. The borders of virtual space: new information technologies and European Islamic youth culture Maruta Herding	50
5. New media beyond neo-imperialism: Betty Boop and Sita Sings the Blues Sandra Annett	63
6. Pluralism and cultural imperialism in the network films Babel and Lantana Vivien Silvey	80
7. The global and the postcolonial in post-migratory literature Ahmed Gamal	94

CONTENTS

8. The cartography of the local in Arun Kolatkar's poetry Anjali Nerlekar	107
Index	123