

Contents

Acknowledgements	ix
1 Visual Political Culture, Childhood and Youth: From Object to Subject to Activist	1
2 The Emergence of a Sentimental Visual Culture	19
3 'And Then the Kids Took It Over': Documentary Film, Racism and the Civil Rights Movement	39
4 The Melodrama of Being a Child: NGO Representations of Poverty	57
5 'You Need to Be Glad That You Graduated from High School, and That You're Alive at Eighteen': Coming-Of-Age in Black Film	73
6 'We've Got a Bright Place in the Sun': LGBTQ Coming Out and Teen Melodrama	95
7 'I'd Be Lost without the Weight of You Two on My Back': Working-Class Teens and the Western	111
8 On 'Being the Representation'	127
9 'We the Wounded': Violence and Citizenship	143
10 Theorising Childhood, Visual Culture and Technology	159
Bibliography	173
Index	185
About the Author	189