

Table of Content

1. Introduction	7
2. 'White' and 'Black' as Ideological Colors in a Racialized Society	19
2.1 Being 'White' as Cash Value: The Ideology of Whiteness	22
2.1.1 Toward Whiteness: The Formation of a 'White' Race	25
2.1.2 Securing 'White' Privilege	30
2.2 'Black' Inferiority vs. 'Black' Empowerment: The Ideology of Blackness	32
2.2.1 From Race Shame to Race Pride: The Formation of a 'Black Race'	34
2.2.2 Building a Strong 'Black' Community	54
2.2.3 Parallels and Differences: A Comparison of Whiteness and Blackness	57
2.3 Who is Black? - Race Theory	59
3. Writing Blackness: Race and Skin Color in African-American Literature of the 20th Century	67
3.1 "The Other Other:" 'White' Characters in African-American Literature	75
3.1.1 Representing Power: Common Roles of European-American Characters	80
3.1.2 A Nation Divided: European-American Characters' Functions in African-American Literature	88
3.1.3 Representation of European-American Characters in African-American Literature	101
3.2 Crossing the Border: Color Line and Miscegenation	105
3.2.1 From Tragic Mulatto to Self-Determined, Multi-Ethnic Individual?	110
3.2.2 Race vs. Skin Color: The Phenomenon of Passing	122
3.2.3 The Imbalance of Interracial Relationships of European- and African-American Characters	130
3.2.3.1 The Master and His Victim? – European-American Men and African-American Woman	134

3.2.3.2	The Danger of Betraying Blackness: African-American Men and European-American Women	143
3.3.	The Broad Range of Blackness: Shades of ‘Black’	151
3.3.1	The Use of Color Words: World Fields and Function	153
3.3.1.1	Depictions of Skin Color in Novels Focusing on Racial Issues	157
3.3.1.2	Depictions of Skin Color in Novel Focusing on Color Issues	187
3.3.2	The African-American Community as Heterogeneous Group	204
4.	Conclusion	213
5.	Bibliography	223
	Acknowledgements	233