Sächsische Landesbibliothek
SLUB
Staats- und Universitätsbibliothek Dresden

CONTENTS

Acknowledgments vii

1. Engineering Sociality in a Culture of Connectivity 3
    1.1. Introduction 3
    1.2. From Networked Communication to Platformed Sociality 5
    1.3. Making the Web Social: Coding Human Connections 9
    1.4. Making Sociality Salable: Connectivity as Resource 14
    1.5. The Ecosystem of Connective Media in a Culture of Connectivity 18
2. Disassembling Platforms, Reassembling Sociality 24
    2.1. Introduction 24
    2.2. Combining Two Approaches 26
    2.3. Platforms as Techno-cultural Constructs 29
    2.4. Platforms as Socioeconomic Structures 36
    2.5. Connecting Platforms, Reassembling Sociality 41
3. Facebook and the Imperative of Sharing 45
    3.1. Introduction 45
    3.2. Coding Facebook: The Devil Is in the Default 46
    3.3. Branding Facebook: What You Share Is What You Get 57
    3.4. Shared Norms in the Ecosystem of Connective Media 65
4. Twitter and the Paradox of Following and Trending 68
    4.1. Introduction 68
    4.2. Asking the Existential Question: What Is Twitter? 70
    4.3. Asking the Strategic Question: What Does Twitter Want? 78
    4.4. Asking the Ecological Question: How Will Twitter Evolve? 86
5. Flickr between Communities and Commerce 89
    5.1. Introduction 89
    5.2. Flickr between Connectedness and Connectivity 91

5.3. Flickr between Commons and Commerce 100
5.4. Flickr between Participatory and Connective Culture 106
6. YouTube: The Intimate Connection between Television and Video Sharing 110
6.1. Introduction 110
6.2. Out of the Box: Video Sharing Challenges Television 112
6.3. Boxed In: Channeling Television into the Connective Flow 120
6.4. YouTube as the Gateway to Connective Culture 127
7. Wikipedia and the Neutrality Principle 132
7.1. Introduction 132
7.2. The Techno-cultural Construction of Consensus 134
7.3. A Consensual Apparatus between Democracy and Bureaucracy 143
7.4. A Nonmarket Space in the Ecosystem? 149
8. The Ecosystem of Connective Media: Lock In, Fence Off, Opt Out? 154
8.1. Introduction 154
8.2. Lock In: The Algorithmic Basis of Sociality 155
8.3. Fence Off: Vertical Integration and Interoperability 163
8.4. Opt Out? Connectivity as Ideology 172

Notes 177
Bibliography 207
Index 221