

Contents

	List of tables	viii
	Acknowledgements	ix
1	Introduction: Muslims in multicultural Singapore	1
2	Understanding social enclaves	15
3	The Malay-Muslim community: A background	35
4	Social distancing: Halal consciousness and public dining	54
5	Religious or public education? The madrasah dilemma	70
6	The body and piety: The hijab and marriage	86
7	Conclusion: State, enclaves and religion	104
	Bibliography	118
	Index	126

Tables

1.1	Ethnicity in Singapore of Singapore citizens and permanent residents ('000) (2006)	5
1.2	Religious affiliation in Singapore	6
1.3	Public holidays in Singapore (2009)	8
2.1	Typology of state management	31
3.1	Occupational stratification in Singapore by ethnic group (per cent)	37
3.2	Singapore's workforce by educational qualification and ethnic group in 1980	37
3.3	Importance of religion by religious affiliation	44
3.4	Importance of God(s) in life	45
3.5	Importance of imparting religious faith to the young	45
3.6	Finding comfort and strength from religion, by religion	45
6.1	Findings on friends and friendship (N = 30)	98