

Table of Contents

Introduction: Victorian Anthropology and Victorian Secularity	1
1. The Rubicon of Language: Max Müller, Evangelical Anthropology, and the History of True Religion	33
2. Arnoldian Secularism: Race and Political Theology from Celtic Literature to Literature and Dogma	68
3. History's Second-Hand Bookshop: Self-Cultivation and Scripturality in George Eliot's Daniel Deronda and The Spanish Gypsy	102
4. A More Liberal Surrender: Aestheticism, Asceticism, and Walter Pater's Erotics of Conversion	130
5. National Supernaturalism: Andrew Lang, World Literature, and the Limits of Eclecticism	163
Coda: Aesthetic Secularism	196
Bibliography	201
Index	223