

Contents

INTRODUCTION	Racism Is a Clear and Present Danger	i
CHAPTER 1.	“White People Are Nosey” and “Black People Are Rude”: Black and White Greetings and Introductory Talk	33
CHAPTER 2.	“Fractured Reflections” of High-Status Black Men’s Presentations of Self: Non-Recognition of Identity as a Tacit Form of Institutional Racism	57
CHAPTER 3.	Clashing Conceptions of Honesty: Black American “Honesty” in the White Workplace	81
CHAPTER 4.	“A Man Is One Who Is Responsible for Others”: Achieving Black Masculinity in the Face of Institutionalized Stigma and Racism	105
CHAPTER 5.	The White Self-Interested “Strong Man” Ideal vs. the Black Practice of “Submissive Civility”: In a Black/White Police Encounter with Jason Turowetz	129
CHAPTER 6.	“Do You Eat Cats and Dogs?”: Student Observations of Racism in Their Everyday Lives	162
CHAPTER 7.	The Interaction Order of a Poor Black American Space: Creating Respect, Recognition, and Value in Response to Collective Punishment	200
CONCLUSION	Digging out the Lies by Making the Ordinary Strange	226
	Acknowledgments	249
	Notes	255
	Bibliography	267
	Index	281