

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction	i
Organization of the book	4
1 Nation building on the edge of empires, 1600–1877	8
Establishing a national identity and the dialectics of anthropology	9
Westward expansion, Manifest Destiny, and race theory	17
Slavery, class struggle, and war	26
Discussion	29
2 Anthropology in the Age of the Robber Barons, 1860–1929	31
Societal evolution	32
Professionalization, certification, and political commitment	44
Struggles over the future of anthropology, 1916–1932	55
Discussion	63
3 Anthropology and the search for social order, 1929–1945	67
Anthropology on the eve of the Depression	68
Anthropology and the New Deal, 1933–1941	76
Anthropology and the war years, 1941–1945	87
Discussion	92
4 Decolonization, the Cold War, and McCarthyism, 1945–1973	98
The reorganization of American anthropology, 1945–1953	101
American anthropology and the Cold War, 1954–1964	111
American anthropology in crisis, 1965–1973	120

Discussion 129

5 Crises, neoliberalism, and globalization, 1973–2000 131

The state of anthropology and its reorganization 133

The turn to Marx: anthropology, political economy, and history 137

Structuralist anthropologies 145

Ecological anthropology and neo-evolutionism 147

Symbolic, interpretive, and postmodernist anthropologies 150

Diversity and inequality 160

6 Anthropology in the New Gilded Age, 1990–2019 165

Ethics, politics, and the profession 167

Toward an historically informed anthropology 173

Historical political economy 175

Inequality, identity, and intersectionality 179

Racism, populism, fascism 182

Anthropology in the age of global warming 184

Discussion 187

Bibliography 189

Index 227