
Notes on contributors	vii
Preface and acknowledgements	viii
Introduction: consciousness in anthropology	1
Anthony P. Cohen and Nigel Rapport

Part I

1 Amazing grace: meaning deficit, displacement and new consciousness in expressive interaction	21
James W. Fernandez
2 She came out of the field and into my home: reflections, dreams and a search for consciousness in anthropological method	41
Tamara Kohn
3 On being a child: the self, the group and the category	60
Allison James
4 The novelist's consciousness	77
C. W. Watson

Part II

5 Dreaming as social process, and its implication for consciousness	101
David Riches
6 Trance and the theory of healing: sociogenic and psychogenic components of consciousness	117
Andrew Strathern
7 From the edge of death: sorcery and the motion of consciousness	134
Bruce Kapferer

8	The return of multiple consciousness: decadence and postmodernity in the specification of psychopathology Roland Littlewood	153
 Part III
9	The inarticulate mind: the place of awareness in social action Kirsten Hastrup	181
10	Blank banners and Islamic consciousness in Zanzibar David Parkin	198
11	Usurpers or pioneers? European Commission bureaucrats and the question of 'European consciousness' Cris Shore	217
	Index	237