

Contents

List of Contributors	vii
Foreword Hugh Tomlinson QC	xi
Introduction Julian Petley	xiii
1 To Punish, Inform, and Criticise: The Goals of Naming and Shaming Jacob Rowbottom	1
2 Public Interest or Public Shaming? Julian Petley	19
3 Privacy and the Freedom of the Press: A False Dichotomy Simon Dawes	43
4 On Privacy: From Mill to Mosley Julian Petley	59
5 Disclosure and Public Shaming in the Age of New Visibility Hanne Detel	77
6 Cultural and Gender Differences in Self-Disclosure on Social Networking Sites Jingwei Wu and Heng Lu	97

7	Crime News and Privacy: Comparing Crime Reporting in Sweden, the Netherlands, and the United Kingdom	115
	Romayne Smith Fullerton and Maggie Jones Patterson
8	The Dominique Strauss-Kahn Scandal: Mediating Authenticity in Le Monde and the New York Times	145
	Julia Lefkowitz
9	Public Interest and Individual Taste in Disclosing an Irish Minister's Illness	165
	Kevin Rafter
10	Visible 'Evidence' in TV News: Regulating Privacy in the Public Interest?	179
	Tim Dwyer
11	John Leslie: The Naming and Shaming of an Innocent Man	201
	Adrian Quinn
12	The Two Cultures	217
	John Lloyd
	Index	223